REFLECTIONS

COMING HOME

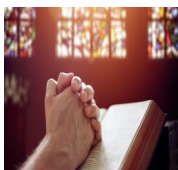

What a day! I was asked to speak at a Homecoming Sunday where I first began my ministry. My wife and I took our youngest son with us. We drove him past the home where we lived and the park where we walked together. Our minds were flooded with precious memories of people and events of the past. It was rewarding to relive those memories, if only for a day.

Can you imagine the greatest day when we come home forever? Do you think about one day seeing the Lord Himself descending from heaven? Wha about the dead in Christ rising? We will be gathered together with the Lord. "And thus we shall always be with the Lord" (1Thess 4:17) We will be coming home for good.

These words are given to comfort us. We are reminded that every homecoming in this life is only a taste of the day we will come home forever. Some Christians were concerned that their loved ones who had fallen asleep would miss this great event. Both those who died and those who were alive would not miss it. The same applies to us. We will see the Lord and hear the shout of the archangel. What a glorious day that will be!
